CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Illinois
State Health Department Lake Michigan
and Indiana, and the people
are working hard to have it,
said Dr. W. L. Lewis, Louisiana, authorities said the union should be formed.

A new channel Lake Michigan
would establish new water ways
between St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, all the great
ports.

A new channel of millions that would be leading to Europe
as well as to build up
navigation canals and other
ports.

Some of the nation will realize
it's time to develop your OWN
ports.

Off group of Rene Fonck, the time his career ended in disastrous loss of two lives, although he had escaped.

He will try again for the unknown flight between New York and Paris. He or another will do it. And such flights in years will be an every day occurrence.

AGAIN an American embassyt fired
two from the points on the Chinese front. A United States ship had been obliged to fire on the toss, but consistently used only one gun.

Heavy gunfire was avoided, not because there were guns that had fired
over so close to Stu-
art of properties which would have been damaged by heavy gunfire."

It is believed that "war between China and the powers" will not long last. China is divided into fighters and a war with China would be disastrous. But couldn't we keep them out of the firing line for a few years?

The Standard Oil Co. knows more

various ways, with cash, of which it is a party.

PTEN the events of today remind us of improvement, and in some
way. Yesterday, for instance,

sions, a mob seized a man, Delacruz,
his wife called them witches, and shot him.

But some terrible, it is. But King Kong, having captured
the world could write calmly, "I can
bite his ear and his lips and chained
him to a post. And in the eighteenth century before Franklin went to prosecute his master, a young man
that was born because he failed
to be born as a sacred process-sion.

That's where the highest law everyone in the land, torturing—is now
so important as much.

There are no gains of

no, we are wondering what the future will do.

With the public gains now it
will be with interest later.

the time and the sake of your men to do it.

LODGE WATERS REcede
IN COSHCOHTON DISTRICT

COSHCOHTON, Sept. 25.—High waters in the Muskingum, Muscavawas and Walker Rivers in this vicinity, were reduced to 11 feet Friday.
The interrupted mail service
was restored, flooded the area around Millers.

No damage was done.
Some damage was early today, but
was not enough to keep the rivers
from flowing.

Twelve Typhoid Cases Reported To Officials At Coshocton; One Milk
Dealer To Be Arrested

COSHCOHTON, Sept. 25.—Contaminated
milk was blamed today for the typhoid fever epidemic from which this city is suffering.

No new cases were reported today.
Health officials announced that 12 definite cases and a number of suspected cases were reported.

Several local milk dealers have been ordered to pasteurize their milk. One
milk dealer, who, it was charged, vio-
lated an order to discontinue service
last June, will be arrested. Authorities said three cases of typhoid were found on his route.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25.—Dr. C. P. Rob-

diseases, State Health Department,
said yesterday for Wellington to confer
with city health authorities concerning
steps taken to combat the typhoid fever
epidemic there.

Robbins said the situation at Well-

local officials had it well in hand.

HOPE TO SAVE 35 ENTOMBED MEN

EXPECT WINTRY
WAVE TO REACH
MARION TONIGHT

Approach of Cold Spell Presaged
by Slump in Temperatures

LIGHT FROSTS FORECAST

Chicago and Middle West Shivers;
Heavy Wheat Crop Loss Reported

Unless counteracted by warm winds
from the south the cold wave sweeping
east out of the Rockies will reach Marion tonight, according to the weatherman.

Approach of the first wintry blast
was noticed today in a gradual decline of the mercury column. Dropping from 84, yesterday's highest mark, the thermometer had slumped to 60 at noon today.

Partly cloudy and much cooler tonight
with probable light frosts in exposed places in the west portion is forecast for Ohio. Sunday will be fair with continued cool weather, the report
continues. A break in the cold spell
is forecast for Monday.

As a consequence of the sudden change, the few Marion men who have been asserting defiance of fashion's
decree by keeping their straw hats in use
have yielded to the stern demands of the weatherman by donning regulation
fall headgear. Heavy bedclothing likewise came to be a necessity Friday
night and according to predictions there will be need for another additional layer tonight.

The summer season, as designated by the calendar makers, came to a close Thursday afternoon, so that the present
cool wave is not unsensuous. In fact, the weatherman was exceptionally generous in throwing in an extra day of warmth for full measure. Friday's temperature comparing with some of the days during July and August which will rank the last summer as one of the hottest in recent years.

Despite the sudden and abrupt decline of the mercury Friday night, it failed to equal the low marks of the same date a year ago. On September 24, 1925, the maximum temperature was 80 degrees and the arrival of a cool
wave resulted in a drop to 50 degrees
before the close of the day. There are

AMERICA FADES OUT AS WORLD COURT PROSPECT

U. S. Entry Pigeonholed by Coolidge Announcement,

Washington, Sept. 25.—American entrance into the World Court almost faded entirely out of the international picture today.

The official announcement at the White House that President Coolidge
does not approve the evasive manner in which the powers have dealt with the Senate reservations, and that he is dis-inclined to submit a new protocol to the senate, thereby inviting a new and more acrimonious party struggle, was taken today as showing the whole project
into a more or less permanent pigment.

Senior leaders will take part in the program by doing pyramid building.
They have been rehearsing daily and
are expected to give a real exhibition in the second floor gymnasium. The entire building will be busy.

Junior girls will appear in the second floor gymnasium. They will have on their program the squirrel cage, newspaper and basketball relay races and other games and contests.

Prep boys will also appear in the second floor gymnasium. Calisthenics, maze running and mass games will take up a greater part of their program.

Cadets To Appear

Cadets will appear by squads on the apparatus. Mass games will be led by Robert Bush, George Glessner and Noel Bender.

DEMANDS LAKE COUNTY
CLERK RETURN $20,371

State Examiner's Report
Charges Official Paid Out on Forged Court Warrants

COLUMBUS, Sept. 25.—Alleging irregularities, including "forging of false
court warrants, omissions from the cash
book," and "forgery of official checks," a report made public today by State Auditor Joseph Tracy, held that H. C.
Cozard, former clerk of courts of Lake
County, should repay into the Lake County treasury $20,371.11.

The president's attitude is that the Senate reservations are clear and explicit, that they are necessary to protect American sovereignty, and that powers can "take it or leave it." This power has not been done. They have supplied their own interpretation of the reservations—an interpretation
totally at variance with the Senate's purpose and the administration's conception of the meaning of the reservations.

The report held that Cozard should repay $19,453.28 said to have been paid out on forged court warrants on the county treasury and supposed to represent compensation for petit and grand jurors.

Refreshments will be served by a committee from the women's department.

IDEAL GIRL AT O. W. U. DOESN'T CHARLESTON

KADGAR GROTTO TO TAKE PART IN STATE MEETING

Special C., D. & M. Car
Chartered To Carry Marionites to Columbus Oct. 2

LOCAL BAND ON PROGRAM

Elaborate Preparations Being Made for Marion Order's Participation in Convention

Elaborate preparations are being made for Marion's part in the annual meeting of the Ohio State Grotto Association, to be held in Columbus, Saturday, Oct. 2. A special C., D. & M. car has been chartered to carry members of Kadgar Grotto of this city and their families to the scene of the meeting and according to present indications, the car will be filled to capacity. A fare of $1 for the round trip has been granted by the C., D. & M., which is open to the public in general as well as members of the Grotto. The special car will leave here at 9 a. m. Tickets will be good on any C., D. & M. car
on the day of the meeting.

Band to Take Part

The Kadgar Grotto band of 55
pieces, one of the best known Masonic musical organizations in the state, will have a prominent place on the Columbus program. It will take part in a massed concert to be given on the state-house grounds at 3:30 in the afternoon
by all Ohio Grotto bands. This program will be broadcast by radio from station WAUZ.

"Miss America" as a title has been appropriated by the bathing beauties, but the Sesqui-Centennial believes that the ideal American girl is of a different type. Miss Alice M. Thompson is the Sesqui's choice as America's ideal girl. She is the daughter of a Methodist minister at East Rochester, N. Y., and freshman at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware. Independently she is working her way through school. She is unbosomed, doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, doesn't care about anything.

Arrangements are also under way to have the Marion band give a special program from the WAUZ station studio.
The time for this feature will be announced later. Kadgar Grotto band has a total membership of 60, but it is expected that only 55 of this number will be able to make the trip to Columbus.

Kadgar Grotto of Columbus, which will be host to the hundreds of guests
expected at the meeting, is making extensive preparations in the way of entertainment. The gathering is expected to be one of the largest in the history of the state. Included in the arrangements are special plans for entertainment of women guests.

Business Session

The program will open with a business session and luncheon at the Masonic Temple for officers of the various Grottos of the state at 12 o'clock, following which there will be a parade of all uniformed organizations at 1:30,
ceremonial and ritualistic work at the Masonic Temple at 3 o'clock, massed
concert of Grotto bands on the state-house grounds at 3:30, exhibition drill at 4:30, dinner for all Grotto members at the Masonic Temple at 5:30 and closing with what is scheduled as "the big fun fest" at 6 o'clock.

Prizes are to be awarded to bands and Grotto patrols and Marion is expecting to be a strong contender for some of the honors. Kadgar Grotto band has won awards on several similar occasions in the past.

Committee

Arrangements are in charge of a committee composed of R. G. Williams, Harold Grigsby and John Gandy.
Louis E. Baier holds the office of monarch, head of Kadgar Grotto, and Bertram Myers is director of the band. Kadgar Grotto has a membership of approximately 500, many of whom,
however, live at points distant from Marion, so that it will be impossible for them to attend the Columbus meeting.

Plans are under way for a competitive match between two picked teams of bowlers. Two alleys will be used by these teams while the other four will be open for the general public.

Considerable preparation is being made by the various committees to make the opening Monday one that will not only be enjoyable to everyone but one that will show just what is being done in the various departments. There will be no admissions charged and it is the hope of the directors and the various committees in the association that the party
will be full of constructive entertainment.

Refreshments will be served by a committee from the women's department.

'FARTHEST NORTH' MURDER OF EXPLORER REVEALED

New York, Sept. 25.—Details of the "farthest north" murder, in which Ross G. Marvin, aid to Explorer Peary in his successful dash to the pole in 1909, was slain by a frightened Eskimo guide named Kudluktoo, were revelaled here today by Dr. Israel Bowman, president of the American Geographical Society.

It appeared that Cozard, in a great number of cases, made out court warrants which were cashed at the county
treasurer's office by persons other than those to whom the warrants were made,
indorsements on the warrants being forged,"
the report claimed.

The examiners said they subpoenaed
680 witnesses and employed the services of H. E. Leslie, a handwriting expert, during their examination. They asserted belief that the county auditor and treasurer should have discovered
these alleged discrepancies.

Several local milk dealers have been ordered to pasteurize their milk. One
milk dealer, who, it was charged, vio-
lated an order to discontinue service
last June, will be arrested. Authors said three cases of typhoid were
found on his route.

CENSURE VOTE CAUSES POLISH BODY TO QUIT

Resignation of Cabinet Causes Sensation in Warsaw; Action Unexpected

Warsaw, Sept. 25. The Polish Cabinet resigned today.

The resignation created a sensation, as it was wholly unexpected. It followed a vote of censure suffered by the government in the semi-slower chamber last night, directed against the minister of the interior.

There is some agitation apparent, but no trouble is anticipated as Marshal Pilsudski has the situation under control. It is believed that the present premier, Professor Hertel, will be called upon to form new cabinet.

The vote in the sejm also censured the minister of education. President Pilsudski has requested the old cabinet to carry on the duties of government until a new cabinet has been formed.

The conflict between the cabinet and the sejm arose over the demand made upon the cabinet by the sejm for a reduction in the budget.

Officials Say They Expect an Even Break on This Year's Event

Knoxville near an even break in receipts and expenditure is likely to be shown in the final report of this year's Marion county fair, according to present indications. There may be a small profit, but the exact results will not be known until probably the latter part of next week, when all accounts are posted to be in and a final settlement effected.

A report on the financial outcome of the annual county exposition was anticipated for a meeting of the executive committee to be held today at the office of the fair secretary, Roland L. Leeper, on Mill st. this evening, but these plans failed to materialize, due to the fact that some of the larger expense bills have not been received.

The session of the committee will be taken up chiefly with passing on a number of bills now on file.

He could have chosen good and evil—right and wrong—and a crop of wits and the type inheriting power in his own tempestuous youth, which always attracted his more foolish sons, allured him to be swayed with a single-minded devotion to himself. His son, when it was suggested that he was incorrigibly idealistic. He invariably believed in man's motives to be good, and that they were proven only by an avocation upon the mind of his only offspring, and Piggy as earnestly argued that business was one thing and sport another, calling upon his parent to remember that, however late-bred, dangerous some of his adventures might seem, they were innocent. He thought his father ought to be thankful that neither cards, horses, wine, women, nor song had lured him from the name of a concrete and jealous god. By every precept and stricture he could devise, he warned Piggy.

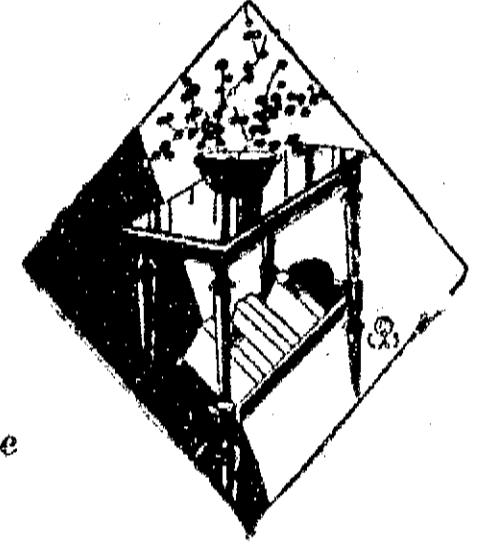

But Brazenose was not thankful.

a romantic figure in your own eyes—and a fool in those of sensible men. And it's going to stay right now! I'm tired of figuring in the public prints as the millionaire father of a fractious adventurer. Got that?"

"Quite."

"All right. Now get this. I like all courageous men, the older Brazenose had imagination, but he unconsciously blushed his father for objecting to pugnacity; he objected to it himself, which made the assertion that he counted it cut the deeper. And the repeated charge that he was romantic seemed to him less than insult. Brazenose was accustomed in his mind with suddenly appearing phenomena generally and comprehensively classified by his clear-eyed generation as bunk. There wasn't no such animal now, and he'd bet his shirt there never had been, except in the minds of long-hand poets and sentimentalists. In short, romance was a word without actual meaning; but the adjective derived from it carried offensive connotations. Only his perception that dad had had a stiff job and was scared had prevented his blushing into outspoken anger which might have provoked a serious quarrel. However, this was not the first interview following one of his exploits where he had seen the old man shaken up by fear after the event, and he had come to understand what caused it. But even so, dad might have been fair.

ASSIGNMENT OF PETIT CASES IS SET FOR TODAY

Election Blamed for Petit Cases

The Red Star Bus Line operating between Marion and Lima, today filed an answer in the damage suit of Audrey Mouger, 14, daughter of Walter Mouger, 625 Oak-st.

Miss Mouger suffered injuries in an accident at the intersection of Oak and Silversts, April 26, 1926, when a Red Star bus struck her.

Baker, in his answer, denies all responsibility for the accident and declares that Miss Mouger was injured through her own carelessness and negligence.

Seek Injunction

Asking that County Treasurer James E. Messenger be prohibited from collecting money claimed due on assessments as the result of the paving of Park-st, Benjamin F. Gatz and Mahal Gast, owners of property at the corner on Park and Patten-sts, today filed an injunction suit in common pleas court.

Assessments as a result of improvements made by the city amounted to $1,600 while the value of the property is only $2,750, the Gasts declare. Since the amount of assessments is more than one-third the true value of the premises, the owners ask that the treasurer be enjoined from collecting the sum.

Man Released

Lewis W. Tansky, of Columbus, arrested yesterday on charges of passing a $47 check on J. W. Clemens, of this city, without sufficient funds to meet the check, was released last night upon making arrangements for the payment of the check.

The affidavit against Tansky was filed by Clemens, owner of the Standard Auto Wrecking and Parts Co., E. Center-st. Tansky was assigned yesterday before Justice M. O. Aller.

from all parts of the city, so that a covering of soil is all that is needed now to prepare the site for some useful purpose.

The ground would be unsuitable for building purposes, some officials and citizens say, because of the unstable foundation provided by the refuse with which the excavation was filled. It would, however, provide an excellent location for a playground, in accordance with the original plans, those citizens assert.

Sale of the ground would bring the city comparatively little revenue, only a small fraction of the value of the property when used for playground purposes, is another argument of those who believe the place should be held as public property.

Dumping Continues

In the meantime, the dumping of refuse continues and the offensive conditions which brought objections voiced before council at its last meeting have not been abated, according to reports. As a consequence, council probably will take definite action in the near future. It is expected that a conference of council and service department officials will be called soon for the purpose of agreeing on a course of procedure.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT COLD WAVE STARTS ON PAGE 1

Indications, however, that this point may be passed by the time the weatherman is through handing Marion's today's dose of wintry atmosphere.

COLD WAVE HITS MIDDLE WEST

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Chicago and the middle west shivered in the first blast of winter today.

The cold wave originated in the northern Rockies and is sweeping eastward. Unless counteracted by warm winds from the south, it should reach Atlantic coast states by tomorrow, the Weather Bureau reports.

A light rain fell in Chicago today. This may turn to snow or hail by night, forecaster C. A. Donnell predicted. The mercury dropped from 73 to 48 overnight and is still falling.

The current frigid wave has resulted in untold damage to crops over the wheat belt of the northwest, according to reports reaching here.

All-time records for low temperature at his season of the year have been shattered. Helena, Mont., reported six degrees above zero.

Damage to crops over the Canadian wheat belt was estimated at $10,000,000.

Daily Proverb—"It is good speaking only that improves good silence."

Nobody had to tell Jack Dempsey yesterday
that fall had arrived.

To all appearances, the present cabinet over
in Paris is going after the French endurance record.

After all is said, could conditions be considered wholly normal were Al Smith not running for governor of New York?

We'll say this for the movie producers: they haven't yet purchased the scenario rights to Mr. Thaw's heart throbs.

What we can't understand is why the opponents of capital punishment don't work on the guinea. They're the next thing to a monopoly on its use.

Old Mother Nature is a stern teacher, but no doubt Florida will profit from her lesson
just as San Francisco did.

Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin urges his brother ministers of the Presbyterian denomination to "preach damnation," and maybe he is right in his assumption that some people will have to be scared to be saved.

This sneering at Dempsey for failing to make good his promise to hold the title till he was knocked out flat in the ring is hardly decent.
It wasn't his fault that Tunney jacked the necessary punch.

Maybe the visitor at Dempsey's camp who said Jack's teeth needed fixing knew what he was talking about; anyway, it's manifest that something was the matter with him the other night when he and Mr. Tunney came together
cut in the rain.

"Save the Yellowstone" is now being heard
throughout the Great Northwest. Great Scott!
Are the commercial and industrial vandals
unwilling to leave us anything of beauty and grandeur?

The Kansas City Star makes the point that it is so difficult to get people who lack the inclination out to vote that primary costs are necessarily high, which is another argument
for making necessarily high costs unnecessary.

An exchange bewails the scarcity of schoolteachers of the right sort. Not so surprising, considering that the pay of the teacher is about one-third that of a member of the building
trades and often less than that of unskilled labor.

Instead of feeling grieved over their failure
to secure seats in the League of Nations, Spain
and Brazil should put themselves upon the back and consider themselves lucky. The show isn't worth the price asked.

Are we to assume, in the light of British comment on Gertrude Ederle's channelfeat,
that the English girl who attempted to swim
the channel, Thursday, and failed was not accompanied by a tug?

Many motorists, possibly having as little
perception of the meaning of the traffic rules
as they have of the demands of courtesy, stop
their cars over the crossings instead of outside of them, thus blocking the way of pedestrians. It begins to look as though wa-
true aristocrats of the land might just as well have been fat people.

More of a Man Than We Thought.
"How soon we are forgotten!" And how awfully, terribly soon our past prowess and all
that it stood for are forgotten and scorned,
especially by sporting writers, it makes us ex-heavyweight champion of the world

Jack Dempsey put up a poor fight—"a terribly bad fight," as he expresses it—but his performance in the ring Thursday night, poor
as it was, was infinitely better than the reportorial performances of those who went out of their way to sneer at him. To slur the beaten and unfortunate is not the course of mannishness, nor is it the course of wisdom.

Sometimes such utterances are compared with the facts to the misfortune of those uttering them. If Dempsey "lost like a dog," as one sport writer put it, the record of the fight,
round by round, failed to disclose it. Either the statement or the round-by-round story of the fight lacked the essential element of truth.

Accepting as an unquestioned fact, that Dempsey's showing in the ring was a miserable
one, what must we say regarding the advance
dope ladled out by the great majority of the sport writers regarding his chances of victory?
What may be said of their ability as a class
as judges of form? And compare the spirit of those who cast slurs upon him, with the manly admission of defeat made by him and the tribute he paid to the ability and clean fighting
of his conqueror—a statement in which he shows more manliness and a better sporting spirit than any from a defeated champion we can recall.

With that statement in mind, we have more respect for Jack Dempsey—defeated, cut-bruised and disfigured, deserted by all save
a few of his camp associates, cast aside by millions of fickle admirers—and hold him in greater esteem as a man than ever before.

Drinking Greatly Reduced.

Ivy Fisher, professor of economics at Yale university, whose ability as an economic expert is recognized the land over, takes issue
with United States District Attorney Enos
D. Buckner, who some time since presented estimates at a hearing of a sub-committee in Washington from which the district attorney
deduced that the diversion of industrial alcohol for beverage purposes in this country
amounted to 60,000,000 gallons annually,
holding that District Attorney Buckner's deductions are not justified by the facts.

The Yale economist cites an analysis of what he calls the district attorney's erroneous
reasoning recently made by Dr. J. M. Doren, chief chemist of the bureau of internal revenue, and also a study showing the diversion of industrial alcohol for beverage purposes to be between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 gallons

a year and more likely between 13,000,000
and 14,000,000 gallons, which would mean
between eight and nine per cent. of the pre-war consumption of beverage alcohol. He also points out that far from all the alcohol
diverted is consumed; that the yearly recapture and confiscation has been between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 gallons and that leakage, breakage and evaporation will account for almost as much more. Upon these figures he bases his view that the probable illegal consumption of alcohol from diverted industrial alcohol is less than eight per cent. of the total consumption of alcohol, legal and illegal, before the prohibition law went into effect. To this he adds the alcohol smuggled into the country and that distilled or brewed therein,
which combined, all experts agree, constitute
a minor portion of the illegal alcohol consumed for beverage purposes—far less than the eight per cent. of pre-prohibition consumption
derived from diversion.

It is upon these facts that Professor Fisher
bases his conclusion that the alcohol today consumed for beverage purposes is certainly sixteen
per cent. of what it was before the Volstead law went into effect, probably less than ten per cent. and possibly less than five per cent. of pre-prohibition consumption.

The Yale economist then cites an independent estimate made by Robert A. Corradini, statistician of the World League Against Alcohol, not yet published—an estimate in which the experts who have seen it can find no
serious flaw—which indicates that present-day consumption of alcohol is less than three per cent. of pre-Volstead days consumption.

Whether we take the Yale economist's
figures and conclusions, which we hold as the preferable course because he speaks as an economist and not as a dry or a wet while Cor-
radini's employment would naturally prejudice
him to a dry view, or those of the statistician
of the World League Against Alcohol, the conclusion is the same, that the consumption of alcohol since the dry law was passed has been markedly reduced.

And we should appreciate this were we without figures, surveys and estimates leading to this conclusion. People in one part of our land are very much like what they are in another. What is true here in Marion is largely true in Kokomo, Kalamazoo, Oskosh and here and there throughout the country. Does anybody doubt that there has been a marked reduction in the consumption of liquor here in Marion? If there are those who doubt they should break away from their delusion. Those who drink here in Marion at present are largely comprised of four classes—the old timers who hate, or feel that they have, to have their drink; those who drink because they resent the attempt to interfere with what they term their personal liberty; those who drink socially because they figure that it's the
"smart" thing to do and the young who apo-
the last preceding class. And we seriously question if all these combined drink a tenth of the volume of liquor consumed in the days
of the saloon.

When one of the large stores in London died of that its employees must wear their hair long, the haberdashers adopted a novel and ingenious suggestion to retain their jobs and their "jobs" at the same time. They all bought them the most delicate of artificial chignons which they attach to the backs of their heads on arriving at business every morning but which they carefully remove before they emerge to the street at closing time.

Mrs. Sager wore a wedding frock of white satin and georgette. Her veil of silk tulle was caught and held in cap shape by orange blossoms. Pink roses and lilies of the valley made up the bridal bouquet.

The bride was attended by Miss Marketta, Mrs. Sherman Townsend, a recently married couple, last night, at their new home, 230 Silver-st. A miscellaneous shower was held for their pleasure, music and cards were enjoyed during the evening, after which lunch was served.

Rogers Sees Ireland And Will Visit League of Nations

Will To Rough

New Political Scheme Includes

BY WILL ROGERS
DUBLIN, Ireland, Sept. 25.—Well, I am away over here in Dublin now. Mrs. Rogers, the other half of me, never been to Ireland since we came. Any time you want to do anything it's about 10 per cent done. Not so long ago went to come to Ireland to see what I could do. I came here once on this visit. I will take a thousand trips before I go home again. You have all heard stories of Irish Sea, that you cross between England, and how rough it is. Well, it was as quiet and calm as Scotland was, like even the sea had something to do with Ireland.

Dramatologer Disaster

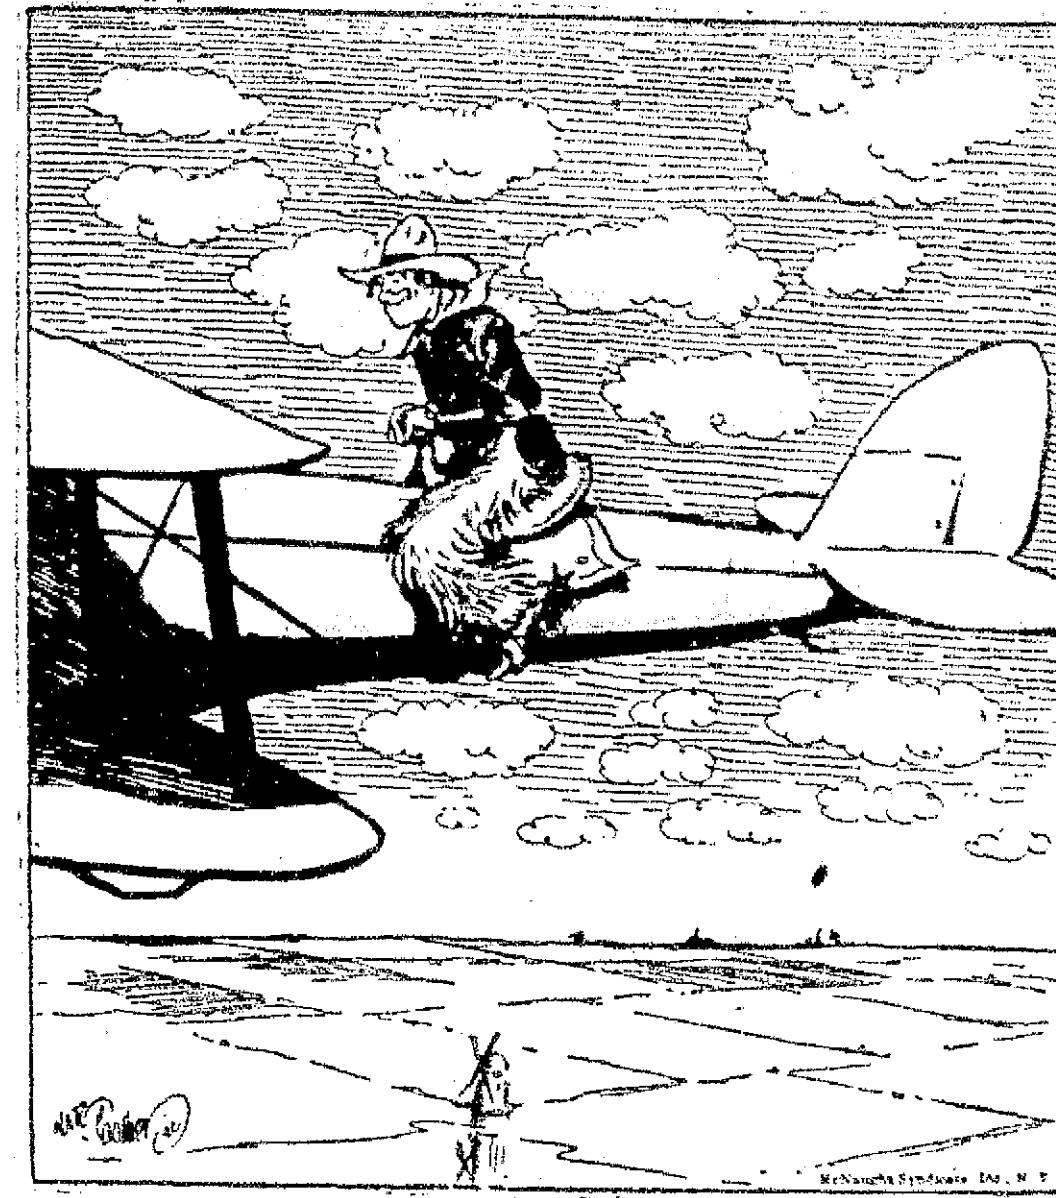

I am good about the terrible Movie business in the Little Town of Drama. And by a coincidence I had passed through there when over here before. And it was such a quiet, peaceful little place and to have all this trouble was certainly not deserved. So when I read about it and I had been playing in London, I saw President Cosgrave of Ireland said I would come right over and help him get me a Theatre, and I would have a benefit. Well, they only had to do it in, but they did. And I took over a big fine Theatre that was closed up, and we had our show. They put on their wonderful Minstrel Band and a Lady Singer and I went to tell them I have been mixed up in all kinds of shows but this one last night was the greatest one I ever was in. You talk about an audience! They were packed in! And you talk about "Getting" your stuff? Say, you leave it to those Irish. They get you and they get you good. If there is a speck of humor or fun in anything you say or do they will dig it out, and they won't be all day digging. They were without a doubt the most appreciative audience I ever saw in my life, at moderate prices we got their hand over four thousand dollars. And then from New York come donations to me from Brandon Flynn, the best Irish Actor that ever started an argument. Mr. Pandemic of New York, and Mr. Frank Searan, and Miss Lois Wilson the Movie Actress, and I want to

HOW I IMPROVED MY HEALTH

Did It in Less Than One Month

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I feel a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong. In my work and take care of three children, I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. LAWRENCE WEAVER, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you know that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

You need spurs in rough weather.

hereby thank them and if they would have heard the applause their names got for thinking of those poor people away over there it would have done their hearts good.

Introduced Cosgrave

Had President Cosgrave in the Box and introduced him. He is doing a lot for Ireland. You take the time he has had and the funds he has had to work with and he has accomplished more than any one in any other Nation I have seen.

Goin' To The League
I am kinder headin' off after Amsterdam and Berlin down to the League of Nations meeting at Geneva. We are not officially represented there, but I am going down as kinder unofficial observer. You know America has a passion, if they just can't get into a Conference they will just give anything just to be near one. They just thrive on conferences.

If America worked as much as the confered we would be so wealthy to us we wouldn't know which Kyle car to buy.

Lookin' Better

I see Germany went in the League and China had a war. Every time somebody goes in the League why a War breaks out somewhere else. Spain had to leave on account of a private war they had going on. They said "Why go in here to get in war when we have a home talent one?" But you take it all in all the old League is looking better now than ever it did. If they just don't get to fighting among themselves they will pull that thing through.

Mellan has been over here somewhere, but on account of people wanting him to make it easy on them, why he had to keep sorta quiet. Course, anything he cancels or rules out he will have to carry personally. That won't be any tremendous hardship, I don't reckon. He is not what you would call the cancelling kind. He got his pile on Interests, and he believes that is a good way to keep on stacking her up.

Hughes Only Grunts

Debt arguments have been pretty quiet over here lately. That Daily Mail that broke out that time has quieted down till you would think we were paying them, they are so nice. It looks like they tried to steal second with the bases loaded, and have recognized their mistakes ever since. Ex-Secretary Hughes has been over here too, but he has associated with Mr. Coolidge so long that he is saying nothing just grunting when asked anything, and not what you would call grunting at that. It's even an audible grunt.

Job for One and All

Prince of Wales has gone to France to enjoy himself. Barney Barnet shot at Grouse till his shoulder got sore, closed up the only Democratic Castle in Scotland, and went home. We will all be piled back in there about the time you read this; that will just give us time to line up our forces for the fall festivities on November 4th. She looks like she will be hot race in some States. Everybody that is in wants to stay in, and everybody that is out wants to get in. You know that is just what is the trouble with Politics there is not enough jobs to go around. You have a good job for every man and that will be the salvation of politics; you will never hear a kick. So in '28 that is one of the planks that I am advocating putting into the platform. "A job goes with every vote." If you vote for the Government why not work for the Government? It's no harder to work for the Government than it is to vote for it. In fact most jobs is not as hard.

Well, I will be annoying you all around personally about the time you read these few lines. Coolidge is going to send over another man, and he will never get one that took the personal interest that I did either. I hope he is appreciative of it, but I doubt it.

"GLITTER" A STORY OF YOUTH AND LOVE

BY KATHARINE BRUSH

The return to normalcy took place suddenly and painlessly.

Madeleine Hamill, opening the door to her son at five o'clock of a blistering afternoon in early July, saw instantly that it had. A dozen little things told her. The look of his eyes. The ring of his voice. The what-care-I tilt of his hat. The long skinning paper-wrapped package under his arm, which could be nothing whatever except a new golf club. When he kissed her lips made a smack! sound on her cheek, indicative of enthusiasm.

But because she was a very wise woman, who understood Jock very well, she did not say, "Tell me about it!" Nor did she dance a jig, nor sing halleujahs, nor give way to any of the impulses that surged in her maternal breast. Instead she went back to the chair in which she had been sitting and flopped down with a tiny moan.

"Isn't it hot?"
"Hell was never hotter," Jock agreed cheerfully.

He removed his hat and let it sail in a neat arc to the divan across the room. He peeled off his coat. He planted his feet astride and with the new golf club, wrapping and all, took several terrific practice swings in air, barely missing the chandelier.

Mrs. Hamill waited, and wished she could spank him.

Finally he stretched himself in a chair near hers, poked his thumbs in the pockets of his vest, dropped his head back, and said, "I saw Yvonne today."

"Yes?"

"Yes. And it didn't mean anything?"

With his elbows propped his body forward and looked straight at his mother, and there was a sort of wonder in his eyes. "Can you beat that? After all these months of—of—sneaking around like I have it simply did not mean—anything? I didn't feel anything."

"Did you talk to her?"

Jock shook his head. "She did not see me. She was in a machine."

Mrs. Hamill, from the sentences that followed, got this picture:

Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street at high noon. A procession of motorcars, and on the corner, a damp impatient host of people waiting for them to slide by.

"... And a fellow, standing next to me said to the girl, 'There's the new Democrat Straight Eight.' Demarest is the one, you know. I looked."

A magnificent two-passenger racing car low slung, painted gray without a top. In the deep well of it, lounging recumbent behind the massive steering wheel—Yvonne. Yvonne in a gray gown and a tight gray turban with long uncultured feathers that spray down on one shoulder. Yvonne, with hair that was a loop of flame on her cheek, with diamonds that glittered in the sunlight on her hands with a Russian wolfhound in a jeweled collar, sitting stiffly on his haunches beside her.

"That's about it."

"Listen!" said Peg, and prodded his ribs with her elbow to be sure that he had his attention. "I'm going to tell you something which I haven't any business telling you and which I wouldn't tell you if I didn't feel sure you'd be—well, call it interested. I know all about Cecily's affairs. I know how the stink you, and what happened, and everything about it. And listen; as long as you are alive, and single, she'll never marry Bill Burnholme or anybody else. There! Bite down hard on that one!"

"Did she say that?"

"Words to that effect. And if putting you wise was a bum hunch I hope somebody shoots me!"

Jock, his face radiant and his heart doing strange alarming things within him, wrung her hand wordlessly in token that it was not.

"Axion! One for Young Men," chanted Peg, established by Jock Hamill of New York City, after intensive personal research work: "The way to find your ideal girl is bring her up to you!"

* * *

They came upon their destination unexpectedly, over the crest of a little hill. Below them lay a green incline bisected by the road; at the foot of the incline a great house of white clapboard, with spacious porches at its sides and front and green-and-white awnings astir at its windows; and, on beyond the house, the stretching blue of water into sky.

"Whew!" sighed Jock emphatically.

"See that float anchored out a way?" Peg said.

"Those little insects crawling around on it are the houseparty. Part of it anyway." The rest are probably on the dock—you can't see that from here, it's under the bluff.

"Jump into your suit quick, Jock," she concluded, as the car executed a swiveling stop beside the house, "and we'll get right down there."

Jock conducted him upstairs into a huge bedroom boasting several cut beds and a tremendous litter of mussel-line effects. "This," explained Johnny, "is the bachelors' boudoir. All in here together have more fun that way. Make it snappy now, will you, Jock? We'll be ready in five minutes. Meet you downstairs.

Jock needed no exhortations to hurry. In several seconds less than five minutes he descended to the first floor again, and waited full of a sense of expectancy so acute, exquisitely that it was scarcely to be endured. Johnny and Peg descended a little after him, found Peg standing on the porch with his eyes toward the water, looking, as Peg whispered, "Like a statue of Adonis in thights."

She approached him and stood on tiptoe to lay a solicitous hand on his forehead. "Poor boy, how are you bearing up?" she begged. "Why, he's feverish! He ought to be put to bed!"

But Jock was past the point where he could jest. "Come on," he said. "Let's move." And then, as Peg and Johnny laughed at them, "That ole sea's going to feel good!"

"Disembarking to the last," Peg murmured.

When they reached the dock, however, he disembarked no longer. He surveyed the wet welcoming faces that surrounded him, listened to the cawphony of delighted voices for an instant, and then said quite simply, "Where's my girl?"

Of course they twitted him a little, being modern young people; but they answered. And in obedience to their answers he directed his glance toward the float that was anchored offshore.

There were two figures on it, one large and manly ("That's Larry Vane, somebody volunteered) the other little and slender and somehow breathtaking. Cecily. With a scarlet suit.

As he looked she flung up an arm in recognition and greeting.

"See you later," said Jock, and dived, and swam, using a swift crawl stroke and making a great churn of foam.

Half way to the float he lifted his head and saw Larry Vane almost before him, going the other way. Larry grinned at him and pointed, "I abdicate—by request—you lucky stiff!"

Cecily was alone on the float. He

for lunch?"

"Tom," said Peg and listed them. "Bill Burnholme not among those present?"

Peg looked blank. "Of course not. Who should he be? I've never even met the man—thought of course I know all about him."

At this point Johnny shouted to Jock across Peg's lap, "Talk to Dad!"

"Yup!"

"Suppose he told you about your new job?"

"You bet he did! I don't feel very swell about it! Guess I've got to thank for that, Johnny."

"Like crazy you have! You've got nobody to thank but yourself."

Peg planted a firm palm on her husband's chest and pushed him back into place. "Subside," she commanded sweetly. "Devote yourself to Lulu. I have certain somethings to whisper in this gen's ear before we get home."

She turned to Jock. "What made you think Bill Burnholme would be here? Of course I know. You that being Cecily's fiance, we'd naturally ask him."

"That's about it."

"Listen!" said Peg, and prodded his ribs with her elbow to be sure that he had his attention.

"I'm going to tell you something which I haven't any business telling you and which I wouldn't tell you if I didn't feel sure you'd be—well, call it interested. I know all about Cecily's affairs. SMITH CLINIC TO BE FINISHED IN THREE WEEKS

Many Departments Planned for New Institution Under Way
on E. Church-st

Construction work on the Smith Clinic, E. Church-st, is expected to be completed in three weeks, according to an announcement made by Dr. F. C. Smith, owner of the new medical and surgical offices today.

With a general idea of developing every department of medicine in the Clinic, Dr. Smith believes that the institution will be entirely under way by the latter part of this year.

If all Dr. Smith's plans are carried out the departments in the new Clinic will include, a general internal medicine department, surgery and diagnosis, eye, ear, nose and throat department, X-ray equipment, genito-urinary and general laboratory.

To Hire Doctors

Negotiations are now being made to obtain several doctors as the respective heads of the departments. Dr. F. W. James, Toledo, a graduate of Western Ontario College of Canada, already has charge of the Genito-urinary department.

Miss Emma Wehrle, a graduate of Frankfort University of Frankfort, Germany will have supervision of the laboratory, according to Dr. Smith who will take charge of the surgery and diagnosis department.

Twenty-three rooms with the exception of the basement are included in the new building. The basement will be used for the X-ray offices.

Cost $30,000

Approximately $30,000 has been the total cost of the construction of the new building. Of this amount about $13,000 was used in repair of the old building in which Dr. Smith had held his offices.

The equipment to be placed in the various departments of the Clinic has been valued at $30,000. The X-ray department will probably have the most costly equipment at $12,000. Other estimated values are eye, ear, nose and throat, $5,000; genito-urinary, $1,000; laboratory, $3,000 and about $6,000 for office and miscellaneous equipment.

A new instrument, the electro-cardiograph, by which the various diseases of the heart are recorded will be added to the equipment in the near future.

MARION LEGIONNAIRES ATTEND CELINA MEET

Several members of the local American Legion are in Celina today in attendance at the second annual reunion of Ohio and Indiana ex-service men, held today and Sunday at Edgewater Park.

The inter-state picnic was inaugurated last year when the event was held for one day.

Several features are included in the entertainment at the "get-together" this year. American Legion bands from the two states will furnish music. Several prominent speakers are also scheduled for the occasion.

ACADEMY CENSORS STYLES

Battle Creek—Battle Creek academy, supported by the Seventh Day Adventists, has issued an edict demanding that girl students lower their dresses until they are not more than 12 inches from the floor, wear collars which do not come more than one inch below the cleavage and cease bobbing their hair. The order gives the girls six months in which to allow their bobs to grow out.

Cambridge, Ill.—The Rev. H. L. Marion County Lumber Co. Head Says Marionites Are Constructing Better Home

Not So Many Dwellings Being Built for Speculation, Claim; Bungalow Being Replaced by English and Dutch Colonial Homes

Horace Ballinger, general manager of the Marion County Lumber Co., E. Church-st, is expected to be building better homes than ever before—and that the general tendency of people today is to build good homes.

Not so many homes are being built for speculation as heretofore, Mr. Ballinger claims. People are building homes for themselves—homes in which they can live, and the natural tendency is building a home for ones self is to build the best possible.

The frame home, from all reports, continues to be the favorite in new homes. They are more economical when a good house is being erected.

The bungalow home, once popular with many homebuilders, is being rapidly replaced by homes of the English and Dutch Colonial types in the better class of homes. The bungalow is said to be not nearly so well adapted for this climate.

Better Type

Although not so many homes are being built in Marion this year as last, the homes that are being erected are, as a whole, of a better type than formerly. The majority of Marionites own their own homes.

The majority of moderately priced homes still consist of six rooms, the living room, dining room and kitchen on the first floor, a full length basement; three bedrooms and a bath on the second floor. All the new homes are properly equipped with electric lighting fixtures and furnaces.

It is of interest to note that very few homes are available without garages, which are rapidly becoming as necessary as bathrooms.

Each year, Mr. Ballinger stated, it is getting easier for the laboring man to own his own home because of the wonderful facilities offered by banking institutions and building organizations in the way of financing.

It used to be said that there were few towns in the country where a larger percentage of people owned their own homes than in Marion. This, according to Mr. Ballinger, still may be said to be the case.

Offer Advice

Today the leading material people in Marion are offering to the public service which consists of advice as to what and how to build, furnish, plan and specifications and building supervision as well as all the materials that are required in the construction of a home.

A change in the kind of roofing used for homes is recorded. The roofs of houses in the past have been largely of asphalt shingle. Inasmuch as they were shotholed, a strong tendency is evident today to use something that offers better fire protection and is longer lived. Such materials as tile slate or rigid asbestos shingles answer this purpose.

The foundation of many of the less expensive homes in Marion are of cement or concrete block construction, both of which materials are manufactured locally.

Southern Pine

Almost altogether, the material used in the building of homes today is Southern pine framing lumber. The interior finish is principally of yellow pine with a few rooms finished in hardwood, such as oak, birch or gum. In the better homes, hardwood is used all over in the interior finish as well as in floors. Hardwood floors cost little more than pine and are easier to care for and much more beautiful in appearance.

Kenton Lad Found Sobbing in Locked Barn Near Midnight

Kenton Sept. 25—More than two hundred citizens, led by city and county officials, joined in a frantic five-hour search here for Paul, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Apostle, who disappeared after his mother had scolded him for playing with a cap pistol.

Many hours after the first of the searchers took the field and when the mother was nearly frantic with fear, the youth was found in a barn within a stone's throw of the Apostle home.

As he left the house near meal time the mother cautioned him to return early. When he failed to report and did not respond to her calling, she became alarmed and summoned aid.

The entire east end of the city was covered by the searchers in their frantic efforts to locate the lad. They inquired in every home, searched through yards, alleys and buildings, but no trace of the missing boy was found anywhere.

Near eleven o'clock a neighbor woman heard sobbing in the barn to the rear of her home and upon investigation found the lad beating upon the door in his efforts to get free. He was nearly exhausted when rescuers reached him.

After having been shut out in the spring game by a score of 2 to 0, the Pacific City staged a fighting comeback last night, beating the Sheppmen, 3 to 2.

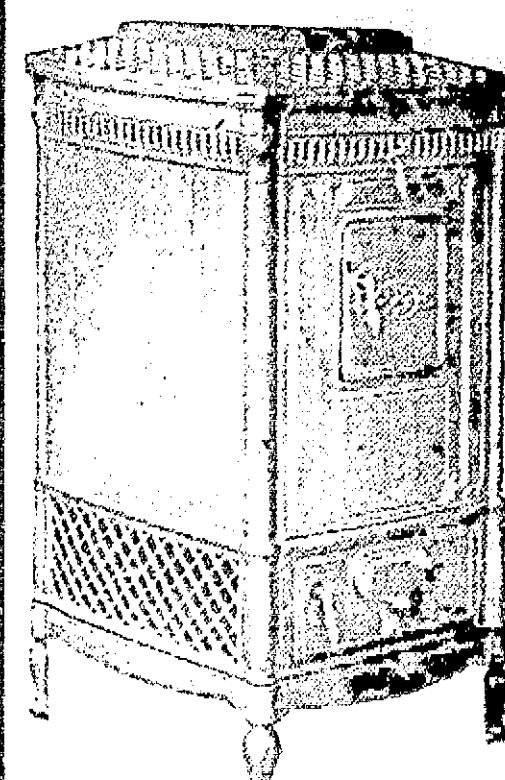

The outcome of the closely contested battle was not determined until the final frame when the letter carriers by a hit of brilliant playing forged into a one point lead.

STEAL BIBLE CLASS' FUNDS

Kenton, Sept. 26—Eight dollars, dues collected from a Bible school class, and 25 pairs Rhode Island chickens, comprised the loot of thieves who robbed the farm home and chicken coop on the M. M. Hanson farm, south of here. Other valuables in the home were left untouched.

The robbery was first discovered yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Hanson returned from a visit with friends in northern Wisconsin.

Investigation showed that the intruders had pried open a rear window to gain entrance. Every room was ransacked. However, only the money was found missing. It had been kept in a box in one of the bureau drawers.

The chickens were carried off in an auto truck, the imprints of the wheels being visible near the entrance to the coop.

Kenton, Sept. 23—A concerted drive is now under way here to raise Kenton and Hardin county's quota of the Red Cross relief fund for the people of the storm stricken areas of Florida.

Because of the urgent need of more funds, notice was received by the County Red Cross chapter that its relief quota had been doubled. Horace D. Smith, Kenton business man and home service chairman, said today.

In urging citizens to aid the stricken people, Mr. Smith declared that only half of the required amount here had been received. "Subscriptions are coming in slowly," he said.

Major H. C. Herren yesterday issued a proclamation calling upon citizens to co-operate, and in response to a telegram received from the business organization of Ft. Lauderdale, W. T. Augur, president of the Kiwanis club, who in his turn transferred it to Free Presbyterian Church of the United States of America.

Iberia Given Picturesque Historical Background By Ohio Central College

Community Was Important Link in Underground Railroad Before Civil War

BY GILMORE HIETT
State Editor, The Star

NEVER reaching a place high enough in the state census list to obtain the papers of a corporate village, the community of Iberia probably has a historical background as picturesque as any place of its size in the state.

Here in this town, which really isn't a town but just a community of 150 people was once located the leading educational institution of Morrow county, the Ohio Central college, where th elate President of the United States, Warren G. Harding, received a portion of his education.

The name of Iberia is linked closely with all things relative to education in that section. Morrow county histories relate that the very first school in the county was located a mile north of what is now the town. That was in 1825 and the school, which was a rough structure built of round logs, scuttled down on the inside . . .

A rough puncheon floor and a fireplace six feet wide on one side of the room, in the domain of various "kickin' and carlin'" teachers. All that is left of the Ohio Central College is the five or six acres of beautiful well shaded lawn that served as a campus on which now rise two buildings, which house the Iberia School system. The grade building located some distance back from the highway is built upon the foundation of one of the old college structures.

The college was in operation for a period of a little more than 25 years. The Rev. George Blaney and Mr. Elliott, Josiah Alexander and his brother, Samuel had charge of the institution during the earliest period of its existence, when it was known as high school.

Present School System

The present schools, located on the old college campus, are accommodating nearly 200 students, 46 of which are enrolled in the first grade high school. A faculty of four instructors, including Superintendent of Schools H. L. Zulau and Principal E. G. McCoy devotes its time to teaching the high school classes. The courses include optional studies such as home economics, manual training and agriculture. There are also four teachers in the grade school.

As diversions from the regular courses, athletics in the form of track, basketball, baseball, volley ball and tennis are offered with a school musical program offering study in both instrumental and vocal music. Arrangements are now under way for the organization of a school orchestra.

Buildings Burns

The synod secured charter for school from the state legislature in 1814 under the name of the Iberia College and was operated under its former policies until the year of 1875. A joint-stock company purchased the college at that time and started functioning under the name of Ohio Central College, a Christian non-sectarian institution, continuing as such until 1887 when the property was bought by the state to be used as a Working Home for the blind.

Community Hall

The large campus offers ample room for all outside athletic contests and a baseball diamond has been laid out adjacent to the main building. Basketball games are played in the Community hall, which was formerly the U. P. Church and is now leased by the township trustees for use of the community-at-large. It is equipped for holding entertainments, ball games and tained secret hiding places for fugitive negroes escaping from the slavery of the south to freedom in Canada. Rev. George Gordon, A. M. only president of Iberia College under the ownership of the Free Presbyterian Church, was imprisoned at Cleveland while living at Iberia on a charge of violation of the Fugitive Slave Law and later was given his release by the authority of President Abraham Lincoln.

Church Consolidation

The Community Hall was made possible by the consolidation a few years ago, of the United Presbyterian and the Presbyterian congregations under the name of the Iberia Federated churches. Both congregations now use the Presbyterian church and are served by one pastor who is hired by both church boards, which are maintained individually.

The picture above is that of the Iberia Methodist Church which held a widely heralded anniversary celebration in July, 1925.

Great Natural Resources

There is nothing of industry in the community, agricultural pursuits being practically the only business enterprise in the community. Two retail stores and a combination garage and filling station serve the needs of the citizen. A postoffice is housed in one of the stores. Public transportation is furnished by bus lines. In the past tile and brick factories were operated there but with only mediocre financial success.

The community, however, is blessed with a great natural resource that sometime in the future may be the cause of Iberia becoming a thriving industrial center. The countryside is underlined with quality sandstone, specimens of which have been quarried by hand and placed about the town. It has proven that it can withstand the wear and tear of weather and use for years. Sometime, this resource may be developed and the entire atmosphere of the countryside altered accordingly.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT COMMUNITY MEET

Green Camp Organization Plans Corn Husking at November Meeting

Mrs. F. W. McNeal. Members responded in despite of inclement weather, there was a good crowd in attendance Thursday night when the first community meeting of the season was held at the school building.

The program opened with music by the Ruth Syncopators of Marion which was followed by prayer by C. F. Haberman. Miss Mary Lois Ritzler and Mrs. E. B. Hostetter of Richwood sang. Major George T. Gern of Marion gave a talk on "Military Preparedness." Mr. Brummett, instructor in the Agrostics school, favored with several piano numbers.</

St. Louis Wins National Pennant In Sensational Race

Hornsby Gives Cards Their First Championship In 38 Years; Cincinnati Fights

Six Clubs Had Chance To Win Before Easterners Took Their First Lead Aug. 23; Reds Only Needed Three Games To Tie Winners

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—Baseball fans throughout the nation today acclaimed Rogers Hornsby and his St. Louis Cardinals who by beating the Giants yesterday gave St. Louis its first pennant winner since 1888, a lapse of 38 years.

As the 1888 pennant was won by Chris Von Er Ahe's Browns, the Cardinals' victory this year marks the first time that the Mound City representatives of the National League have won the championship.

Victory came to the Cardinals this season after one of the most sensational races in the league's history. At time, the first six clubs had a chance to win, and at no stage did the first place team lead the field by more than five games. Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and St. Louis held the lead in turn with the leadership changing frequently toward the close of the season. The Cards took the lead for the first time on Aug. 23. After several slumps of short duration, they again forged to the front and never were headed.

Yanks Leads

With the National League pennant clinched by the St. Louis Cardinals interest today centered on the American League race, where the Yankees lead the Indians by two and one-half lead as a result of Cleveland's defeat by Philadelphia yesterday.

By winning both games of a double-header with the Browns this afternoon, the Yankees can clinch the pennant. The outcome also will be settled if New York breaks even and Cleveland loses one game of a double-header with the Athletics.

The Cards clinched the pennant by downing the Giants, 6 to 4, while Cincinnati was losing the first game of a double-header with the Phillies.

Cincinnati made sure of second place by winning the second game.

The Cardinals sowed up the National League hunting by beating the Giants, 6 to 4, on Southworth's homer. The Giants knocked them out of the box in the first when Terry hit for the circuit with two on, but Sherdell held them there.

Cincinnati passed out of the picture by losing to the Phils, 9 to 2, when Lucas was shelled off the mound. The Reds won the second game, 8 to 4.

The Indians were handed a three to one setback by the Athletics, and now trail the Yanks, who were idle, by two and one-half games. Rommel outdistanced George Uhle.

One can, sometimes, induce another to one setback by it is likely to be mighty unprofitable after all.

BODY OPPOSES HALF MILL TAX LEVY RETURN

Marion Man Helps Launch
Campaign of Government
Economy and Efficiency

J. W. Jacoby, Marion attorney, who is president of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, returned Friday night from Columbus, where he attended a meeting of representatives of various state organizations called for the purpose of discussing Ohio's tax and finance problems.

As a result of the conference one of the most important campaigns for public welfare in the history of Ohio is probable according to a review of the proceedings obtained from Mr. Jacoby today.

An organization was formed by the election of C. A. Dyer, Republican agent of the State Grange and Farm Bureau Federation, as president, and William F. Kopl, secretary of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, as secretary.

Primary Program

While the primary purpose of the meeting and the organization effected is to oppose a return of the half mill tax levy for highway expenses, a much broader and more important program developed. A thorough study and survey of governmental affairs is to be carried on by governmental affairs in to effect in reference to the needs and means for eliminating needless expenditures and to do away with overlapping departmental activities.

While the movement will relate to state affairs at the outset, it is designed to extend to community government eventually, the idea being to keep the public's tax bill at the lowest possible level.

Auditor's Report

A report from the state auditor estimated that by next June, which will be the close of the two-year fiscal period covered by appropriations made by the last general assembly for state expenses, the treasury will show a deficit of $1,000,000. Of this amount, $2,000,000 will represent highway department expenses, but all have failed. Organization leaders lack of this latest drive for government efficiency and economy believe, however, that by thoroughly informing the public on Ohio's ancient tax methods, the next referendum vote will result in the adoption of a more up-to-date system.

Local Survey

When it comes to carrying the survey into local affairs, the organization will have the results obtained in a similar campaign in Youngstown to use as a basis of operations. As a consequence of business men's organizations having united in an effort to improve municipal finances there, expenses of the city government were reduced $55,000 in one year, a report showed.

The conference Friday, held at the Southern Hotel, was attended by representatives of the Ohio Manufacturers Association, Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, Ohio Tax Association, Ohio Banker's Association, Mahoning Valley Industrial Association, Merchants' Association, Building Owners' Association, State Grange and Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

The proposed half-mill state levy, fought by these organizations is being advocated by the Ohio Good Roads Federation and the State Automobile Association.

Mrs. V. Cooper, Republican candidate for governor, has made known his opposition to the levy and the attitude of Governor Dunham has not been definitely announced.

Do you know that—only 9 men out of every 100 ever succeed in accumulating as much as $5,000?

Think of it—in America, the richest country in the world, 90 out of every 100 men are dependent at the age of 65 on the charity of relatives or the public.

This is even more amazing when we realize that—the majority of men and women have sufficient earning power to make themselves financially independent.

Why, then, are 80 out of every 100 men failures? BECAUSE they overlook the fact that it is not what they earn but what their money earns that will make them financially independent.

To build an independent income you must follow a definite plan in managing the money you earn.
